

Giving through your Donor Advised Fund

Combine favorable tax benefits with the flexibility to easily support iDE.

A donor advised fund (DAF) is a type of giving fund administered by a third party that allows you to combine favorable tax benefits with the flexibility to easily support iDE. It is created to manage your charitable donations.

An increasingly popular charitable vehicle, DAFs provide a way to simplify your charitable giving. DAFs allow you to give cash, stock and other assets and receive a tax deduction when the contribution is made. Then, you may use the fund to grant specific amounts to iDE over time.

To do this:

- Establish your Donor Advised Fund by making an irrevocable, tax-deductible donation to a financial company that operates a DAF program, like Vanguard, Fidelity, Schwab Charitable.
- Determine the investment allocation of the donated assets (any investment growth is tax-free).
- Recommend iDE for a grant whenever you would like (recommend using iDE's full name, International Development Enterprise)
